From Mr. Royze, of New Albany, Indiana, inventor of a new agricultural wonder, a Rotatory Plow.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30, 1852.

MR. ELDER—Sir: I cheerfully avail myself of this opportunity to give you a few brtef statements in reference to Professor Salomon's New Mechanical Motor, as it is your request, as well as a duty I owe my country. The facts are the following, as near as I now recollect:

I arrived at Cincinnati on the 8th of October, 1851, and on the following day I called to see Professor Salomon's New Mechanical Motor, of which I had read accounts in the public papers. I was desirous to see the engine, from the fact that I had for some time previous been studying to make some principle applicable as a young the professor of the engine. I saw my embodied idea before me more perfect than I had conceived.

I witnessed the operation for near an hour. It was uniform and perfect, and of sufficient power to lift a weight of 12,000 pounds 25 times in a minute. This power was applied to turn the machinery of the shop, and appeared to be equal to steam engines commonly used in machine shops. The whole length of this engine is about 12 or 16 feet, and I suppose its weight might be about five or six tons. The furnace is a small sheet iron pan, the size of my hat, and held about a double handful of charcoal. The machinery is not more complicated than that of the steam engine, of which I have given you a brief description.

I am not pecuniarly interested in the success of the invention. I never expected to be called upon to make any statements in reference to it. I have had no previous acquaintance with Professor Salomon, and never saw him, to my knowledge, until I met him in this city on yesterday. Yours, respectfully, P. E. ROYSE.

MARSH'S LATE IMPROVED SELF ADJUSTING TRUSS—the embodiment of ingenaity. Skill and science are beautifully blended in this useful instrument, admirably adapting itself to the different movements and positions of the body. Its perfect action and certain pressure at all times and under all circumstances, gives to the wearer that confidence in his safety so necessary to his happiness. The instrument is neat and compact, dispensing wholly with straps and buckles, leaving the wearer a free use of his limbs, he becomes unconscious of its presence, and pleased with its relief, continues to wear it a few months, when a cure is permanently effected.

Also, MARSH & CO.'S.ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERNS, of various patterns; one of which claims especial attention, as it is worn with much comparative comfort to that of others, being so constructed as to give a uniform support to the Back and Abdomen, doing away with the steel spring, so annoying to the wearer. The above article will be found of great benefit to persons afflicted with pain in the back and sides, inability to be upon their feet for any length of time, which arises from a displacement of parts that are readily restored by timely application of a properly constructed instrument.

ey, and involves a matter of taste. Some people like character; I prefer money. If I am hated and despised, I chuckle over the 'per contra.' I find it pleasant for members of a proud aristocracy to condescend from their high estate to fawn, feign, flatter; to affect even mirthful familiarity in order to gain my good-will. I am no Shylock. No client can accuse me of desiring either his flesh or his blood --sentimental vengeance is no item in my stock in trade. Gold and bank-notes satisfy my 'rage;' or, if need be, a good mortgage. Far from seeking revenge, the worst defaulter I ever had dealings with cannot deny that I am always wil ling to accept a good post-obit. I say again, I am daily brought in contact with all ranks of society, from the poverty stricken patentee to the peer; and am no more surprised at receiving an application from a duchess than from a pet opera-dancer. In my ante-room wait, at this moment, a crowd of borrowers. Among the men, beardless folly and mustached craft are most prominent: there is a handsome young fellow, with an elaborate cane and wonderfully vacant countenance, who is anticipating in feeble follies, an estate that has been in the pos session of his ancestors since the reign of Henry the Eighth. There is a hairy, high-nosed, broken down nondescript, in appearance something between a horse dealer and a pugilist. He is an old Eto nian. Five years ago he drove his fourin-hand; he is now waiting to beg a sovereign, having been just discharged from the Insolvent Court, for the second time. Among the women, a pretty actress, who, a few years since, looked forward to a support of steak and onions, with bottled a few years since, looked forward to a supper of steak and onions, with bottled all warranted to give satisfaction by feb2 WM. KENDRICK. 71 Fourth st. stout, on a Saturday night, as a great treat, now finds one hundred pounds a month insufficient to pay her wine-mermonth insufficient to pay her wine-merchant and her confectioner. I am obliged to deal with each case according to its peculiarities. Genuine undeserved Ruin seldom knocks at my door. Mine is a perpetual battle with people who imbibe trickery at the same rate as they dissolve by a vial of your Vermifuge, and who always gives that medicine for symptoms of chills, adversely undeserved that the viting the people who imbibe trickery at the same rate as they dissolve by got perfectly well. I think in more than half the a perpetual battle with people who imbibe trickery at the same rate as they dissolve their fortune. I am a hard man, of course. I should not be fit for my pursuit if I were not; but when, by a remote chance, honest misfortune pays me a visit, as Rothschilds amused himself at times by giving a beggar a guinea, so I occasionally treat myself to the luxury of doing a king action. My favorite subjects for this unnatural generosity, are the very young, or the poor, innocent, helpless people, who are unfit for the war of life. Many among my clients (especially those tempered in the "ice-book" of fashion and high-life—polished and passionless) would be sufficiently factorized by express a rich and beautiful assortment of Furcishing Articles, of the latest importations, viz:

Fancy Cravats, bright colors, new style; high-life--polished and passionless) would be too much for me, if I had not made the face, the eye, the accent, as much my study as the mere legal and financial points of discount. To show what I mean, will relate what happened to me not long since:—

One day, a middle-aged man, in the usual costume of a West-End shopman, who had sent in his name as Mr. Axminster, was shown into my private room .-After a little hesitation, he said, "Although you do not know me, living at this end of the town, I know you very well by reputation, and that you discount I have a bill here which I want to get discounted. I am in the employ of Messrs. Russle and Smooth. The bill is drawn by one of our best customers, the Hon. Miss Snape, niece of Lord Blimley, and accepted by Major Munge; whom, no doubt, you know by name, She BOYS' CLOTHING! BOYS' CLOTHING!

succeeded to a great estate, he has long ceased to be a customer. I instantly detected a forgery; by whom? was the question. Could it be the man before me? experience told me it was not. Perhaps there was something in the expression of my countenance which Mr. Axminister did not like, for he said, "it is good for the amount, I presume?"

I replied, "Pray, sir, from whom did you get this bill?" "From Miss Snape herself."

"Have you circulated any other bills made by the same drawer?"

"O yes!" said the draper, without hesitation; "I have paid away a bill for one hundred pounds to Mr. Sparkle, the jew eller, to whom Miss Snape owed twenty pounds. They gave me the difference." "And how long has that bill to run

"About a fortnight."

"Did you endorse it?" "I did; Mr. Sparkle required me to do so, to show that the bill came properly into his possession."

"This second bill, you say, is urgently required to enable Miss Snape to leave

"Yes; she is going to Brighton for the winter." I gave Mr. Axminster a steady, pierc ing look of inquiry. "Pray, sir," I said, "could you meet that one hundred pounds bill, supposing it could not be paid by the "Meet it!" The poor fellow wiped from his forehead the perspiration which suddenly broke out at the bare hint of a probability that the bill would be dishonored: "Meet it? O no! I am a married man, with a family, and have nothing but my salary to depend on." Then the sooner you get it taken up and the less you have to do with Miss Snape's bill affairs, the better." She has always been punctual hith-

MCAllister's All-healing Ointment

It is generally conceded that this Medicine has effected more correst han any seven remedies ever presented to the public. It has probably cured more cases of Piles, Rheumatism, Sore Byes, Burns, Tumors, Salt Rheum, Quincy, Sore Throat, &c., than all the popular medicines in use; and I am positive in Liver Complaint, Scrofula, Asthma, Coughs, Consumptions, Spinal Diseases, Worms, Broken or Sore Breasts, Headache and the like, nothing can be found with physicians or druggists that is so good, and the cure so quick. In all complaints peculiar to females especially, its efficacy appears almost miraculeus.

per and spongy gums are constantly inhaling an impure atmosphere, and hence many diseases arise which perhaps are never attributed to the right cause. JULES HAUEL'S PURIFIED CHARCOAL TOOTH-PASTE is decidedly the best remedy yet discovered for diseased teeth and gums, as it neutralizes the disagreeable odor arising from carious teeth, and renders the gums firm and healthy. All dentists agree that charcoal is an excellent dentrifice; but many persons have been fearful of using it on account of the hard and grifty substances which are generally mixed with it, and which are calculated to injure the enamel of the teeth.

Jules Hauel's Purified Charcoal Tooth-Paste is entire ly free from this objection, as the coal from which it is prepared is formed from poplar wood burnt expressly for the purpose in an iron cylinder. The other ingredients are only such as are necessary to prepare the charcoal in this form, and in themselves are entirely innocuous. The Purified Charcoal Tooth-Paste will impart the most beautiful and brilliant whiteness to the teeth, keep the gums healthy, and make the breath pure and sweet.
